The Hazrat Imam Complex is a religious center and one of the most beautiful landmarks of the city, located in the old town surrounded by traditional mud-brick houses that survived the 1966 earthquake. The complex is built around the tomb of Hazrat Imam, a renowned scholar, Quran expert, poet, and craftsman, and includes several significant structures, such as the 16th-century Barak-Khan Madrasah, the Tilla-Shaykh Mosque, and the mausoleum of the saint Abu-Bakr Kaffal al-Shashi. It is also home to the Imam al-Bukhari Islamic Institute, where students are trained to become future imams, and houses a rich library of Eastern manuscripts, including the famous Ottoman Quran, a 7th-century holy text that has traveled through many cities and countries over the centuries. The complex is beautifully landscaped with exotic trees, shrubs, and flowers, and in spring, summer, and autumn, storks roam freely, while the nighttime lighting transforms the site into a scene straight out of an Eastern fairy tale.

The Kukeldash Madrasah, built in 1570 during the reign of the Shaybanid dynasty, was commissioned by the viziers Barak-khan and Dervish-khan, with the madrasah named in honor of the latter, whose nickname "Kukeldash" means "milk brother." Renowned for its stunning blue majolica tiles, the madrasah became not only an educational institution but also a key part of the architectural ensemble of the main city square.

The residence of Prince Romanov, built in 1891 in the popular Art Nouveau style of the time. The elegant house is richly decorated with intricate grills, uniquely shaped windows, towers, and other decorative elements, with a large garden at the back of the building.
